1. Prior to December 1953, the 46th How Arty Regt [REDACTED] was stationed at the new barracks installation on Kecskemeti Street in Nagykoerces (Q 48/O 06). The 54th How Arty Regt [REDACTED] was stationed at Szabadstallas (Y 6/N 55) where, [REDACTED] it was quartered in a new barracks installation outside the city area. The (presumed 16th) mortar regiment was stationed at Szolnok (Q 48/O 37) presumably in a new barracks installation outside the area of the city. An NCO of the 46th How Arty Regt said that, in the fall of 1951, his regiment moved from Mor (P 48/Y 81) to Nagykoerces, the 54th How Arty Regt from Balatonfuere (Y 5/D 66) to Szabadstallas, and the mortar regiment from Kom'rom (P 48/Y 75) to Szolnok. On 31 December 1953, the three above-mentioned regiments were subordinate to the 30th Art Div in Cegléd (Q 48/O 08).¹ 25X1
2. In December 1953, the 46th and 54th How Arty Regts were organized like the 103d How Arty Regt into a regimental headquarters, a 1st Bn, a 2d Bn, and a regimental NCO school each. After the disbanding of the 4th Bn in October 1953, the (presumed 16th) mortar regiment still had three battalions. 25X1
3. Each battery of the 46th How Arty Regt had four 122-mm field howitzers and four 3.5-ton ZIS trucks which were used as prime movers; each battery of the 54th How Arty Regt had four model 1938 152-mm field howitzers. The rest of ordnance and equipment of the two regiments was similar to that of the 103d How Arty Regt. Ordnance and equipment of the mortar regiment were unknown.² 25X1
4. From 1 May to October 1953, the 46th and 54th How Arty Regts and the mortar regiment were at the Hajmasker (P 48/D 79) artillery range and in the summer camp in the southeastern section of the Csoka Forest, about 5 kilometers west of Nagykoerces, together with the other units of the 30th Arty Div. 25X1
